

The plans below provide information about the layout of southwest airport now and the way it will look after renovation.

Now, there are a few gates and facilities, but the airport will witness dramatic changes during a year. While there are 8 gates at the airport, the related area will be expanded and there will be 18 gates available. Sky train will be built to replace walkways. Shops will be constructed in the north of the security passport control. A check-in will be constructed on the original site of the café and the café will be relocated next to the passport control customs. Another café will be erected on the left side of the departure doors. The check-in, which is accessible now, will be removed to make way for bag drop. An ATM will be placed on the right side of arrival door, next to new the café. The area between passport control customs and the arrival doors will be expanded and a car hire will be erected on the corner of the area near the ATM.

Overall, there will be more gates and facilities available in the airport as well as more straightforward transportation.
